

FYRES Coordinator 2016-2017

Jessica Petrie

Jessica Petrie is a junior who is studying Geology, Archaeology & Latin. She is from Seattle, WA and loves to talk about anything related to the state of Washington or archaeology. Because she was in the FYRES program and absolutely loved it, she thought it would be a great idea to be the FYRES Coordinator and to help make it a wonderful experience for those in the program this year. As a student in FYRES, she studied the efficacy of re-vegetation and sand fence management at Castle Park Dune Preserve. This last summer she worked in Romania on an archaeological dig that was continuing to excavate an 11th c. cemetery. In addition to excavating, she also loves hiking, backpacking, traveling, and dancing. After graduating from Calvin, she plans to attend graduate school to pursue a job in Field Archaeology.

As the FYRES Coordinator, Jessica helps prepare for labs by coordinating transportation and equipment, updating the website, and creating publicity materials.
